

SERVICE LEARNING A PATH TOWARDS SPIRITUALITY OF AUTHENTIC COURTSHIP AMONG MWECAU STUDENTS

Mwenge Catholic University-Tanzania

Problem
Spirituality of Authentic Courtship among MWECAU students.

Purpose
To find out whether service learning can be a path towards spirituality of authentic courtship among MWECAU students.

Research Questions

- The main objective is to analyse if service-learning can be the path of spirituality towards authentic courtship. The specific objectives were to analyse on:
- How does spirituality help students live in authentic courtship?
- How does service-learning helps student to understand courtship and responsibility?
- What is the importance of service-learning towards authentic courtship?

Methodology

The study will be conducted at Mwenge Catholic University where by the targeted population will be 1,400 second year students. The researchers will employ both quantitative and qualitative designs. Under the former, cross-sectional survey will be used and with the later, case-study will be used. Both probability and non-probability sampling techniques will be employed to sample 100 students.

Results

Firstly; the discussion with the on how the spirituality helps the student to actualize authentic courtship shows that, 83% affirmation and 17% negation.

Secondly; 86% of the students affirm on how service-learning helps student to understand courtship and its responsibility whereas only 14% negative the interdependence.

Thirdly; 78% of the students affirm the importance of service-learning towards authentic courtship where as 22% negate.

Conclusion

Service-learning have shown effectiveness towards developing authentic courtship among MWECAU students, hence it is believe continue actualization of this mutual sharing of knowledge with the student will continue to benefit them in the day to day life within and outside the university campus.